William Flowers, an old resident of Limestone Hill, Wood county, has just received a back pension of $3,200. He is 103 years old ard is a veteran of the war of 1812, for which services he received the pension. He has all his faculties, but was blind at one time for several years, when his second sight returned to him, and he can now see almost as well as ever. He is very spry and active for one so old, and his mind is clear and intelligent. He talks readily on every-day topics and is up with the times. He bids fair to live sold, each less well as year yet, to enjoy his sudden but well deserved wealth. Strange as it may seem he was not one of George Washington's body guard and never beheld the lilustrious father of his country. 'Altogether he is a very remarkable man.

Cheap Vegetables and Fruits.

For the past week, the produce market in this city has been glutted with vegetables of every kind except tomatoes, which as yet are not abundant. Of everything elee, however, the supply has been much larger than the demand, and prices have accordingly been away down. Several produce dealers have been obliged to unload on Pittsburgh, and all of them have been kept busy disposing of the stuff before it was unlit for market.

The produce dealers have also been greatly worried over their consignments of tropical fruits, such as bananas, oranges and lemons. The hot weather has had a disastrous effect on these fruits. It seems as though they actually melted away, so rapidly do they spoil.

The orchestra inaugurated the proamme with Richard von Wagner's "In roduction to the Master Singer of Nurn ourg." the successful achievement of a difficult undertaking.

When at a signal from Director Arbenz's baton the members of the combined male chorus of nearly four hundred voices rose, it was greeted with applausa from all parts of the house. The "Six Old Netherland Folk-Song" of Kremser, is a tempting selection for such an occasion, its successive portions offering a variety of effect without marring the general harmony of the whole composition. The baritone solos were undertaken by Prof. Ed Scheuder, of this city, while the solotenor passages were assigned Mr. Kausche. They were omitted, however. The success of the chorus was maryelous. It was strong in volume and cultirily eyen in balance. Practically no opportunity was afforded the combined societies to rehearse together, all their practice being by the individual societies. Yet when brought together, the capteful separate drilling of each produced a perfection of time which could scarcely have been surpassed by singing together through a long period.

singing together through a long period.

WHERLING'S OWN SONG BIED.

Next upon the programme appeared the name of Miss Flors Williams, who sang Joseph Dungares "To Sevilla." Her first appearance was the "dans! for a burst of appearance was the "dans! for a burst of appearance was the "dans! for a burst of appearance was the most william. Volces the most brilliam and difficult passages with "full throated case," and her higher notes are peculiarly free from harshness. The most pleasing feature of her singing is the apparent absence of effort, added to which is a delightful richness of native melody in her voice which justifies the hopes of her friends for a brilliam musical luture for this modest little song bird. The applause she received amounted to an ovation, and compelled her return to the stage where she repeated a part of the same song—retiring amid still heartier, vociferations of delight.

Miss Williams was accompanied by Prof. Ebeling on the piano. It is to be regretted that she did not have an orchestral accompaniment as in the afternoon, but the score could not obtained in time. Praise is due Prof. Ebeling for his fine piano accompaniements given during the Fest.

MISS HENNINGES, MISS HENNINGES.

Weber's Aria ("Agatha") by Miss Henninges, was a repetition of her preceding triumphs. Her charming stage presence, vivacious and dramatic bearing and rarely musical, flexible voice, were agais acknowledged by the audience in round after round of applause and braves, and it refused to be silent until the prima donna reappeared. She did not sing, but kissed her band repeatedly to the audience and musicians, again arousing the enthusiasm of all-

When early in the preparation for the Srengerlest it was aunounced that the fest orchestra would attempt Beethover's sublime Sixth Symphony, there were many who feared that the selection was ill avised, while all regarded it as during.
